This is the letter "h." The letter "h" sounds like the wind — "hhhh." That's what the letter "h" says, like in hand, heart, house and hen.

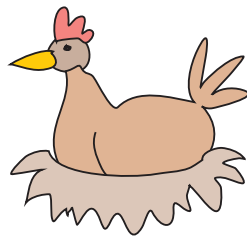

heart

horse

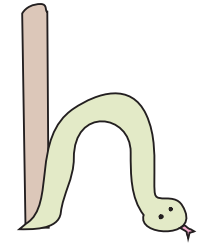

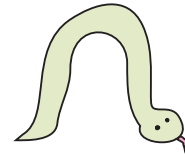

hand

hen

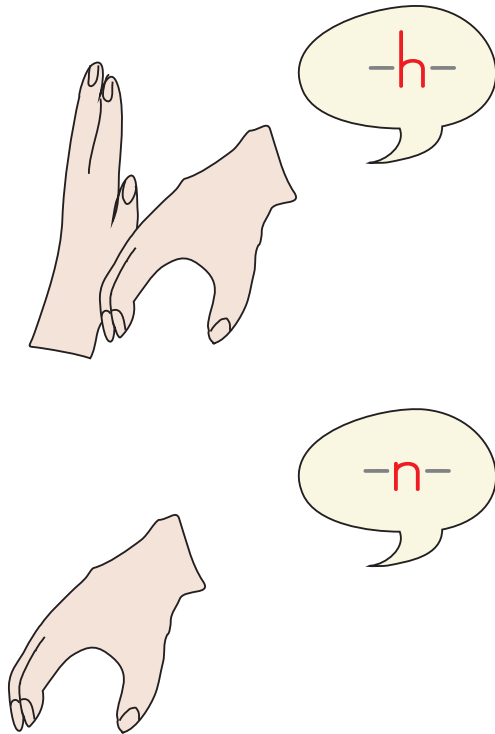

The letter "h" looks like the letter "n," except that the letter "h" has a stick.

What does the letter "h" say?
(Have the child make the letter "h" sound several times.)

Let's see who can make the "hhhh" sound the longest!

Let's use our hands to make the letters "h" and "n":

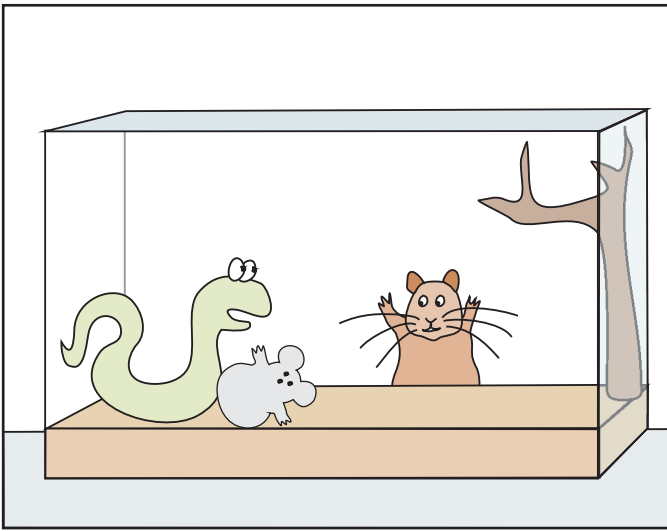

What does the letter "h" say?
("hhhhhhhh!")

Here are two words we can make with the letter "h" – can you read them?

One day, a hamster comes to visit sid and sis.

"Hello," says the hamster.

"My name is ham.

ham the hamster."

sid suddenly feels very,
very hungry. "Mmmmmm," says sid. "I think I will make a ham sandwich."

ham is hungry too.

"A sandwich for ham

would be very, very nice."

says ham, clapping

his little hands.

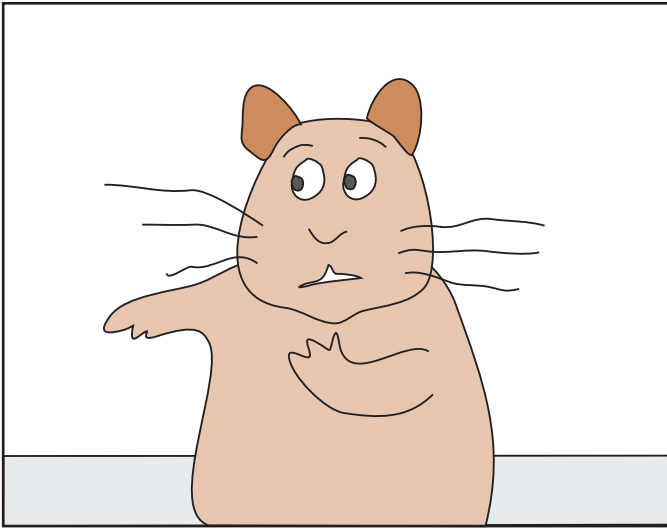

sid opens a cupboard

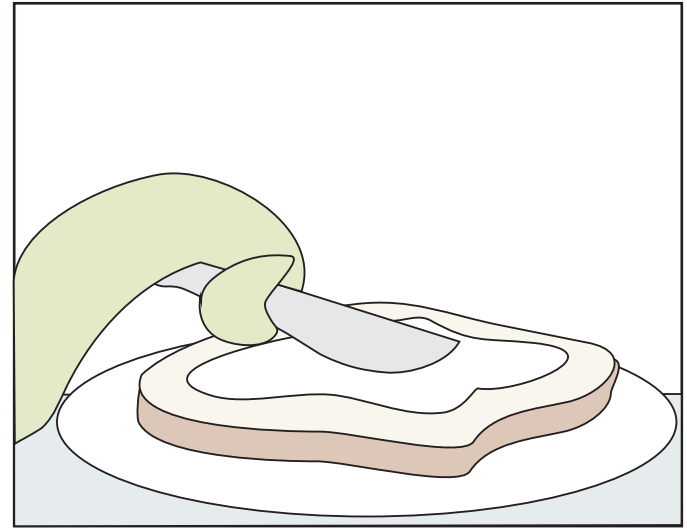

and takes out some bread.

Then sid opens the fridge.

"Mustard or mayonnaise?"

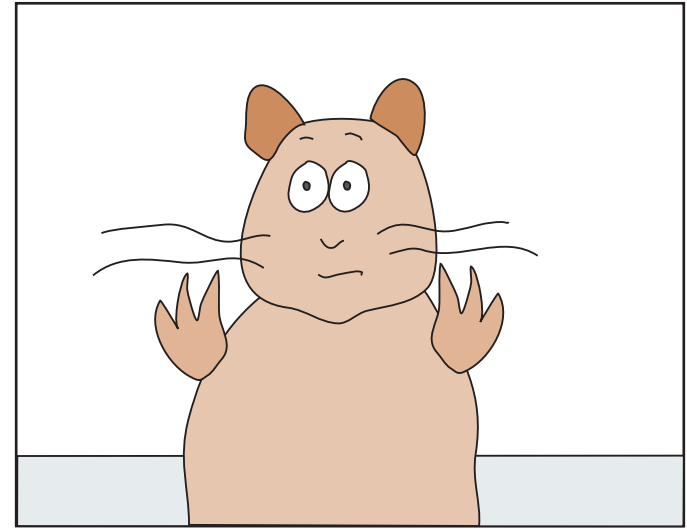

ham is happy about
mayonnaise, but not
mustard. "Just mayo,"
says ham.

sid gets a knife and spreads mayonnaise on
a big slice of bread.

Then sid puts a
big blob of mustard
on the bread.

“Ewww!” says ham.

“I do not like mustard!”

“Well, I do,” says sid

as he puts even more

mustard on the bread.

"Pickles?" asks sid.

"No, thanks," says ham.

"Yes, please," says sid,
putting three big pickles

on the bread.

"Yuck!" says ham.

"I do not like pickles

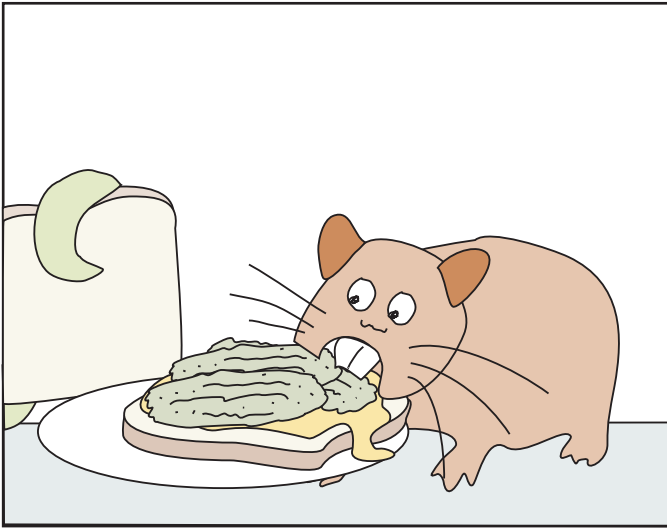

on my sandwich!"

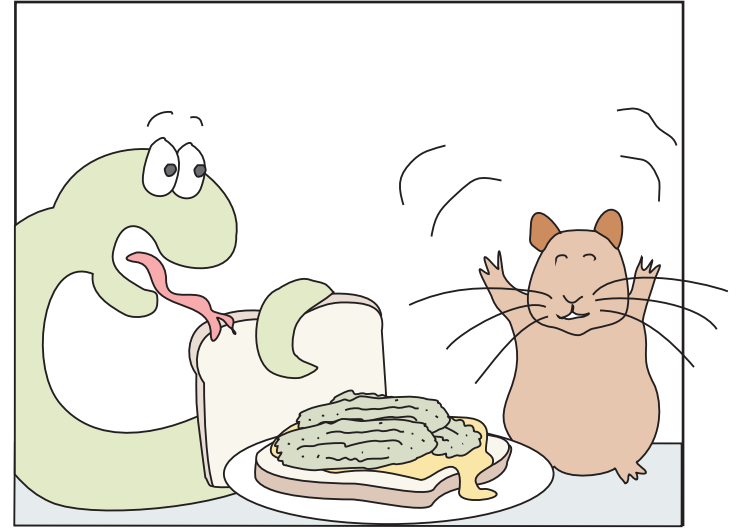

"Pickles are the best," says
sid as he sprinkles salt and pepper on the
sandwich.

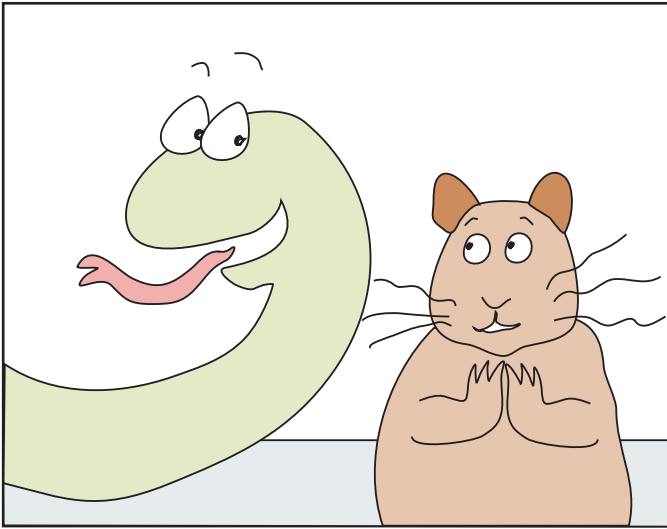

sid holds up the
second piece of bread.
"Time for the ham to
get on the ham
sandwich."

But instead of getting
on the sandwich, hungry
ham takes a big
bite of the sandwich.

"Oh, my!" says ham,
jumping up and down.
"This sandwich is amazing!"
You, sid, are the best cook in the world."

sid forgets that he is hungry. "My dear, DEAR little ham," says sid.

"I love to hear how clever I am. Please continue..."

ham is happy to continue. "This is the best," says ham. "I can't believe I never liked pickles before — you are an artist!"

They live happily ever after, with sid making lots and lots of ham
sandwiches – or rather,
sandwiches for ham.

And with ham telling sid what a clever, clever snake he is.
